NORTH EAST
TRANSPORTATION
PLANNING WORKSHOP

May 23 4:30 – 6:30 p.m. Open House Workshop
7 p.m. Presentation
North East Town Hall

We invite you to a Public Workshop to shape the future of downtown North East. The concerns and ideas you express will be the basis for readying North East for successful future bus transit and commuter rail service and developing a strategy to enhance North East as a unique community.

Information about the Cecil County Bicycle Plan and draft North East bicycle recommendations will also be available for comment.

During this interactive event, learn what characteristics make transit-oriented communities successful and discuss your ideas, concerns and objectives. What type of future development can best enhance North East, which services and facilities are most needed, what transportation improvements will give safe, appealing travel choices, and how can public art, landscaping and infrastructure nurture North East as a desirable place to live, work and play?

Visit between 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. at your convenience, to discuss ideas for the Plan and make comments to the project team. A presentation will be made at 7 p.m. during the meeting of the Mayor and Commissioners, followed by question & answer and discussion.

This project is a partnership of the Town of North East and the Wilmington Area Planning Council (WILMAPCO).

Why plan for Transit Oriented Development?

Transit oriented development (TOD) is a mixed use residential and commercial area designed to make public transit successful, walking and bicycling convenient and safe, and provide for a vibrant, livable community. We are developing a North East TOD Plan to:

- ❖ Identify potential location(s) for a future train station / transit hub.
- ❖ Form recommendations for future land uses around existing and future transit.
- ❖ Identify transportation needs related to existing and planned transit including access by car, walking and bicycle, parking and streetscaping amenities.

10-20 Minute Walk Around Rail

WHAT IS TRANSIT ORIENTED DEVELOPMENT?

Transit-oriented development (TOD) creates compact, walkable neighborhoods around transit or planned transit. It helps make transit successful by creating many destinations within a short walk, offering convenient access to jobs, shopping, services and recreation.

North East has great TOD potential. Currently along the 460 miles of commuter rail between Richmond, Virginia and New London, Connecticut, there is one major gap: the 20 miles from Perryville to Newark. Filling this gap has been a top local and regional priority. Maryland is promoting transit-oriented development to increase the number of riders and get a better return on transit and rail investment.

While TODs come in many sizes and types, successful TODs share a few characteristics:

- ❖ Pedestrian-friendly environment with wide sidewalks, well-marked crosswalks, good lighting and narrow streets to slow traffic.
- ❖ Landscaping, inviting public spaces and interesting architecture to enhance walkability.
- ❖ Greatest density of land use is closest to transit and tapers off as you get farther out.
- ❖ Limited surface parking to efficiently use prime locations closest to transit
- ❖ Shared or structured parking to reduce impact of parking areas.
- ❖ Provides a mix of housing, jobs, shopping and recreation choices.
- ❖ Increases community value for public and private sectors, residents and visitors.
- ❖ There is no one-size-fits-all TOD; design and scale must complement desired community character.
